Your home away from home. Meet the 'Stuga Rest' poled awning by Dometic.

Düsseldorf, Germany – August 30, 2025

Dometic launches new premium poled awning range for touring caravans. Designed for permanent pitching the Dometic Stuga range features an innovative new material fresh to the RV industry that is sustainable, high performing and a durable alternative to PVC.

Dometic, known for premium air awnings have now extended the range into full poled caravan awnings using a new 100% Polypropylene fabric and coating that has been developed in Europe. This new fabric is dope-dyed which increases UV resistance and stops fading, a vital requirement for longer stays in the sunshine. Engineered for durability and ease of use, the fabric is lighter weight than PVC, fully waterproof without any treatment and has inherent properties that make it easy to clean if left for long periods. In addition, the material retains its softness in all temperatures making it easy to handle, set up and take down. The material is also fully recyclable.

The new Dometic Stuga range has been designed with the same DNA as the successful 'Tour' range of products. All come with apex ventilation to keep the air circulating, large windows to soak up the views and soft touch easily removable curtains.

New features include a natural central doorway to give easy access and a home style feel, full zipped blinds on the window and door exterior offering complete privacy when needed. Fully adjustable sturdy steel poles make the structure and all models in the range will benefit from a standard 250cm depth from the caravan offering generous living space with stylish European design. Ground sheet and roof lining come as standard.

To assist set up there is an innovative optional accessory – An inflatable tube that gives the user easy access under the fabric
